Brief summary: Introduction of service learning as part of the after-school programmes

Subject: Introduction of Service Learning Awards in secondary schools

1. The Western Cape Education Department (WCED) is pleased to announce the continuation of service learning recognition as a feature of its programme in September 2018.
2. Historically, the WCED has officially recognised the work of educators and the performance of schools generally. However, it has realised that the outstanding innovative work done by many of our learners does not always receive the same or equivalent recognition to that given to the work of educators.
3. The Provincial Minister for Education supports the idea that the WCED rolls out the annual Service Learning Awards, which will be known as the WCED Service Learning Awards.
4. It is the intention of the WCED to strengthen and improve the project as it develops.
5. Service learning is a teaching-and-learning model that is already established in many parts of the world. It seeks to integrate meaningful community service with instruction and reflection to enrich the learning experience, teach civic responsibility and strengthen communities.

6. Although many schools in the Western Cape are involved in community-related work, no programmatic and province-wide recognition of learners' learning linked to community service has been given thus far.
7. Generally, communities need more and more people – especially young people – to be involved in a social contract that seeks to rebuild the moral fabric of our communities – especially in historically marginalised social contexts.
8. The participation rules are contained in the accompanying information guide. The principal and the Teacher Liaison Officer (TLO) responsible for the school's Representative Council of Learners (RCL) are expected to assist the RCL members to manage this venture themselves so that they are trained in handling such assignments.
9. While initially the WCED will be looking for existing projects and initiatives, the intention is also to aggressively build capacity and encourage participation in schools that do not have such activities. This will be done through the Safe Schools after-school intervention.
10. In this regard, governing bodies are encouraged to ensure that their schools have clearly identifiable after-school programmes that will be improved every year.
11. This programme can change the way learners look at the community. Principals are encouraged to inspire learners to want to be better citizens as this initiative has the potential to improve social cohesion and foster better human relations.
12. Attached to the circular are the guidelines and an entry form.
13. Please bring the contents of this circular to the attention of all RCLs and governing bodies of schools.

SERVICE LEARNING AWARDS

2018

INFORMATION GUIDE FOR SERVICE LEARNING AWARDS

CLOSING DATE: 15 AUGUST 2018

1. Introduction

The Service Learning Awards was launched in 2016 and will be held annually henceforth. It will be improved upon through extensive consultation with district and other Western Cape Education Department (WCED) structures. The applicable terms of its framework as well as its categories, in line with its development demands, will be continually refined, sharpened and broadened.

The WCED wishes to encourage all learners and their guiding educators to volunteer to participate in this important venture through various school-designed community enhancing activities and programmes which are intended to contribute to community upliftment. The WCED acknowledges the extraordinary efforts made by learners and educators, often under very difficult conditions, to impact their communities in a positive way.

The Service Learning Awards project is one of the ways in which the WCED acknowledges and encourages dedicated and caring learners in their efforts to develop and support each other as citizens of a democratic, non-racial and non-sexist South Africa.

Service Learning connects learning to real-life community experiences in order to ensure that learners recognise the need for continual improvement of the life of communities.

The initiative will further enhance the prospects of contributing towards the achievements envisaged in the provincial After School Game Changer.

2. The objectives of the WCED Service Learning Awards are to:

- encourage learners to involve themselves actively in various areas of their school communities;
- promote cooperation, fellowship and better understanding among learners in schools;
- promote education and contribute to the betterment of schools and the communities they serve;
- encourage efforts to place the school at the centre of the community;
- encourage learners to initiate projects and sharpen their leadership skills; and
- provide youth with awareness of issues relating to youth and community challenges.

3. Creating a service learning project

The only way to learn how to create a service learning program is by creating and implementing one!

3.1 Below are some suggestions to help learners create a service learning project:

- a) Learn from an existing programme.
- b) Determine the needs of the community you will be serving.
- c) Determine the resources needed for the project. Note that money is not always necessary.
- d) Projects must always display strong links between community services and the curriculum.
- e) Be guided by the skills, content and themes that are to be taught and pursued.
- f) Service learning ideas are best developed as a team effort.
- g) Collaborative planning is key. Brainstorm possible activities with learners, colleagues and others to produce a wealth of options (and create excitement). This often leads to collaborative service learning activities: An educator who has contributed a suggestion is more likely to participate; learners whose ideas are taken seriously make a stronger commitment and agencies become more involved partners.

3.2 Identify an existing programme or activity to transform into authentic service learning, such as a project at school and examine it for learning opportunities. Exchange ideas with educators, learners and community partners.

3.2.1. Begin with standard curriculum content and skills, and find the natural extension into service. Identify the specific content and skill areas to be addressed, maybe look for additional learning opportunities in other subject areas.

3.2.2. From a theme or unit of learning, identify content and skill connections. Begin with a broad theme or topic, often with obvious service implications, and then identify specific content and skill areas.

3.2.3. Start with a learner-identified need. Identify the learners' skills, talents and interests. Have the students define the problem, a need and solutions.

3.2.4. Start with a community-identified need. If the community requests assistance, perhaps through an agency that has worked with the school before, a partnership should be formed with the agency.

3.3 How do I ensure that service learning advances student learning?

Service learning advances and enhances learner learning when educators plan ahead to establish authentic curricular connections.

3.4 The best service learning programmes:

3.4.1. are directly linked to the academic curriculum;

3.4.2. meet a real community need;

3.4.3. provide for structured group reflection time;

3.4.4. are learner-centred;

3.4.5. engage learners in group decision making and problem solving;

3.4.6. find ways to match the skills and talents of learners with the needs of the community;

3.4.7. provide a wide variety of options for learners; and provide recognition for services rendered

3.5 We encourage educators and learners to take the following principles of the National Curriculum Statement (NCS) into account when planning projects:

- a) Social transformation: ensuring that the educational imbalances of the past are redressed and that equal educational opportunities are provided for all sections of the population.
- b) Active and critical learning: encouraging an active and critical approach to learning, rather than rote and uncritical learning of given truths.
- c) High knowledge and high skills: the minimum standards of knowledge and skills to be achieved at each grade are specified and set high, achievable standards in all subjects.
- d) Human rights, inclusivity, environmental and social justice: infusing the principles and practices of social and environmental justice and human rights as defined in the Constitution of the Republic of South Africa, 1996. The NCS (Grades R–12) is sensitive to issues of diversity such as poverty, inequality, race, gender, language, age, disability and other factors.
- e) Valuing indigenous knowledge systems: acknowledging the rich history and heritage of this country as important contributors to nurturing the values contained in the Constitution.

3.6 The NCS (Grades R–12) aims to produce learners that are able to:

- identify and solve problems and make decisions using critical and creative thinking;
- work effectively as individuals and with others as members of a team;
- organise and manage themselves and their activities responsibly and effectively;
- collect, analyse, organise and critically evaluate information;
- communicate effectively using visual, symbolic and/or language skills in various modes;
- use science and technology effectively and critically showing responsibility towards the environment and the health of others; and
- demonstrate an understanding of the world as a set of related systems by recognising that problem solving contexts do not exist in isolation.
